National Federation Meeting

The National Alliance Football Committee and the executive officers of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations met at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago, Illinois, during the period of January 7-10, 1963. The Kentucky High School Athletic Association was represented at the football meeting by Ath. Dir. Edgar McNabb, Beechwood High School, football clinic director. Meetings of the football rules committee were held on January 7 and 8.

Executive Secretary Clifford B. Fagan of the National Federation has summarized the more important rules modifications and revisions adopted by the 1963 National Alliance football committee, and has included a report of matters discussed. Mr. Fagan's report follows:

The agenda for the opening session included several exceedingly informative and interesting presentations.

The Committee's Chairman, S. F. Burke, presented the National Federation's Executive Committee (Section 1, Northeast, John J. F. Ruddy; Section 2, East Central, H. A. Meyer; Section 4, Central, R. R. Watson; Section 5, Southwest, R. J. Welsh; Section 6, Northwest, John V. Bernard; Section 7, West, R. J. Lofton. Mr. Burke represents Section 3, Southeast.) The Chairman outlined the procedure to be followed in conducting the business of the Committee. He pointed out that participation in the rules meeting and representation on the Committee carries with it the obligation to follow the rules as adopted unless the specific state or organization is authorized to conduct an experiment. When a state or organization adopts the rules they are accepted without reservation and are to be followed exactly, except where an experiment is duly authorized. No state or organization participating in the formation of the rules has a right to set aside any of them.

On application and with an agreement to submit a resume of the experience, experimentation is authorized for a given project. It was pointed out, however, that experiments were not authorized which would set aside a fundamental principle of the National Alliance Football Code.

Mr. James Lewis, a Director of the Illinois High School Association, welcomed the Committee on behalf of the host state. He expressed personal appreciation for the opportunity to attend the Committee's opening session and offered the assistance of the Illinois Association in making the meeting successful. As a former coach as well as in his present capacity of school superintendent, he complimented the Committee on its progressive record and its consistent action in the interests and welfare of the participant. He deplored the undue emphasis on "hard-nosed football," because it increased the injury hazard. The use of some tactics calls for a reckless abandonment of reasonable safety measures. If such an attitude is adopted by those in positions of leadership and responsibility, it will, in the opinion of Mr. Lewis, eventually defeat itself and harm the overall program. He called the Committee's attention to the fact that the cost for care of injuries sustained in football was becoming prohibitive and that in addition to the many other reasons for stressing safety was now added the need of conducting the program without excess medical and insurance costs.

As has been the custom at recent meetings, the Committee was privileged to hear presentations from leaders in football and other areas which are closely associated. The first of these presentations was made by Mr. Clark Shaughnessy, football coach and technical advisor. Mr. Shaughnessy has had unusually wide experience in football as a player, coach and technical advisor. Even though he has not been officially associated with the interscholastic phase, he has always had a great interest in this area. Mr. Shaughnessy emphasized the great responsibility of the Rules Committee in actually determining the kind of game and the nature of the contests in which high school and college students would participate. He contended that the Committee's philosophy be such as to ensure that participants derive some physical, moral and spiritual benefits from participation. He pointed out that the only purpose of the game at the interscholastic and intercollegiate levels was to benefit the participants. He demanded that any rules changes be made only after giving due consideration to the effect the change would have on the value of the game to the participant. He drew upon personal experiences and related several anecdotes which illustrated the points he was making in his presentation. He agreed that it was important to play to win and insisted that, generally, teams will be successful as far as winning is concerned if they know what to do, when to do it, how to do it and if the team has the desire or the "urge to get the job done."

John Pace, a referee in the National Professional League and a former member of the National Alliance Football Rules Committee, very effectively discussed the role of the official in providing desirable interscholastic athletic competition, particularly in football. He called the Committee's attention to the fact that it is necessary that the officials be provided with a code of rules, logically arranged. This code should maintain the distinct elements of the game, provide the proper balance between offense and defense, provide opportunities for thrilling experiences to hold interest, and it should protect the welfare of the participants. It was emphasized that the schools have a responsibility in encouraging men of character and integrity, who have the other necessary qualifications, to enter the field of football officiating. The state associations have the responsibility of devising programs and opportunities for neophyte officials to practice the art and develop competencies. Mr. Pace stressed the fact that the quality of officiating frequently is dependent upon the caliber of leadership in a given geographical area. He recommended, without qualification, four-man crews for the administration of the interscholastic game. He insisted that, with the rather large area to be covered involving 22 competitors in a complicated game, crews of less than four men could not adequately or satisfactorily officiate

In Memoriam

HOWARD LAW

Howard Law, 59, Athletic Director and Swimming Coach of Highlands High School, Fort Thomas, died of a heart attack on January 12, 1963.

A native of Kentucky, Mr. Law had been coach and teacher in Fort Thomas for twenty-six years. Before coming to Fort Thomas he served as a coach and teacher in Grant County, Kenton County, and Campbell County School Systems.

Mr. Law graduated from Holmes High School in Covington, attended Purdue University, and received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Kentucky.

Mr. Law served in a number of capacities during his tenure at Highlands. From 1937-1954 he served as line coach in football. During the same period he served several years as head coach or assistant coach in basketball. He served as an assistant track coach for many years, and since 1955, has been head swimming coach. His swimming teams won several state championships. He assisted a number of times in the operation of the state swimming and track meets. He was a member of the K.H.S.A.A. State Swimming Committee.

Surviving Mr. Law are his wife, Lillian, and three sons, Howard, William and Allen. Allen was the captain of this year's Highlands High School Bluebirds Football Team.

Certified Officials

Four additional officials have qualified for the "certified" rating since the list of these higher rated officials appeared in the January issue of the ATHLETE. They are: Roy Bowling, Joe Kinman, Roy J. Miller, and Humsey Yessin.

The Flying Dutchman

Brisco Inman, Basketball Official, is a "Big Man From the South," although, he stands only five and a half feet tall. If the Dutchman were asked to name the four best officials in Kentucky, Danville's Briscoe Inman would be on the list. He would also be on our list of Kentucky's finest gentlemen.

Briscoe knows the rules, how to apply them, and has the intestinal fortitude to call them without fear or favor—so what happened to this likeable young athletic director from Centre College is indicative of the danger of failure to report ALL THE FACTS when asking for rulings.

A decision by Briscoe to allow a time-out in the Shelby County-Madison County game caused a reporter to call the Dutchman to ask, "May one team call time-out when the other has the ball?" He forgot to mention that a goal had been scored causing the ball to become dead when either team may call timeout. This "Sin of Omission" caused an incorrect news story to appear saying that Inman had erred. Briscoe stoutly defended his decision, as he should have, and the story was corrected the following day saying, "Inman was correct in his ruling." Briscoe took the unjustified "beating" in the manner which so befits a "Big Man From the South." The Dutchman doffs his hat to the short whistler with the long appetite.

Most Kentuckians think that when Edgar McNabb finished the football clinics and the Dutchman the Basketball clinics their work is done for another year. Actually, it is only beginning. Requests for interpretations continue until the championships are decided. Here are a couple of illustrations produced in the month of December.

Twelve o'clock midnight: The phone sounds like a fire alarm and some character is calling to say, "There's a rule that's been bothering me for three years. I hope I didn't disturb you." Well, for his information, he did disturb me. In fact, I'm still disturbed. I'll never know how that dream came out, but neither will Oran Teater. In that dream Teater was telling the "Keeper of the Key" to press the down button for the Dutchman Reporter, but I believe I had him out-talked.

One o'clock (A.M.): A coach can't sleep and calls for a ruling and he gets it; a half hour later the officials, who worked the game, can't sleep either so they call for a ruling—only the facts are not those presented by the coach—and so these calls go on and on throughout the weekend nights of each season. Confidentially though, I love every minute of it—but maybe that's the reason Mrs. Dutchman makes me sleep in my sound-proof den.

The one thing this interpreter has learned is to preface his ruling by saying, "If the play happened in the manner you described, I will rule as follows." Incidentally, when you are in Louisville for the N. C. A. A. and the State High School tournaments, stop by the Dutchman's new offices at 620 South Third Street for a "Bull Session."

Did it ever occur to you that you determine whether you are going to be happy or miserable? Doing two clinics daily to complete our fifteen-clinic program causes some to ask if the clinic tour isn't an awful grind. Actually, the Dutchman has a ball. Each successive clinic means new friends and more fun. If this Dutchman could just be sure that he'll have as much fun the next fifty years that he had the first fifty, you needn't feel sorry for that one hundred-year-old Dutch fan who will remember the olden days when Herb Tye, Ed McNabb and "Baby" DeWeese worked the Tournaments.

George Maines, the officiating pride of northern Kentucky, has something new organized in the ninth region in a coaches' and officials' association. A number of officials' associations exist over the state, but George has merged the two fraternities to effect a meeting of the coaching and officiating minds. On February thirteenth the Dutchman will make a sashay to the "stomping grounds" of Tom "Big Daddy" Ellis to meet with this Coaches-Officials Association at Fort Mitchell.

The Corn Cob Pipe of Honor, for January, goes to Al J. Schansburg, Publisher of the

Remember that March 31 is the last day to nominate a physically-handicapped youngster for The Game Guy Award.

Responsibility of the Coach

By Frances Elliott

Editor's Note: This article is based upon an interview with Neil Reed, a high school basketball coach of several years and at present a graduate assistant in basketball at the University of Kentucky under head coach Adolph Rupp.

Any coach can overcome most problems concerning training, if he carries out important essentials, says Neil Reed, high school coach of several years and now graduate assistant in basketball at the University of Kentucky.

Reed states, "When I began coaching basketball two years ago at Wauconda (Illinois) High School, six boys out of an enrollment of more than 700 students showed up to join the team. In the year before that, the coaches smoked and drank and so did the team members."

Armed only with the desire to alter this situation, Reed set up a set of rules. "I received little cooperation from outsiders because they thought improvement couldn't be done. The essential matter is that the boys understand the reasons for rules."

"By the second year the team, which now numbered ninety-six try-outs made up their own rules—tougher than those I had given the year before. 'Let's make Wauconda a champion,' was the cry, and the team was beginning to understand their responsibilities as athletes and take pride in their school."

Coach Reed always remembered a saying he had heard years before, "You can give the poorest crew a leader who will follow his own rules and the crew will become good, whereas the finest crew without a leader who sets an example will be poor." This was his responsibility.

Rules concerning dating were not so bad as the boys were allowed to study with a girl friend just as long as they were home by 9:30. "One practice before a game I asked one of the boys why he was so tired. He said, 'Well Coach, you might as well know. Jim and I were out late with two sisters in a car necking. We meant to tell you before now.' This happened during the week and the car belonged to the athletic director."

During his two years at Wauconda, Reed spot checked with one boy every night without their knowing. "During that time not one boy was out past the time limit. One night following a game two boys riding home in their family car got stuck in the snow. These boys didn't chance waiting for a tow truck. They abandoned the car and walked home. They called me shortly before curfew to let me know they were home on time."

Before the boys rule out smoking and drinking for themselves they are properly educated in the harm these things can do for athletes. "Drinking brings an automatic off-the-team, and you know we've never had a problem with this in my two years."

Smoking is something else, however. "I had a boy take himself off the team because he told me he felt he didn't have enough to sacrifice as long as he continued to smoke. Although he was a good scorer, he took on the sideline job of record keeper. I had heard this boy was sneaking around to smoke, but I had to catch them before placing any blame. Boys have to realize you're fair, not merely a policeman. These boys know that while they can't play ball and smoke, they lose no respect I may have for them as a person."

Reed explains that "What people don't seem to understand is that to build a team that appreciates rules, the coach must also sacrifice. It hurts to have to sit a boy on the bench because he admits staying past curfew by ten minutes, but he knows the consequences he must pay and it's my job to see that he does."

"Do you know that once during a regional tournament one boy turned in another for cursing in the locker room before the game. Many in the audience bet this leading player would not be benched. I had no choice but to not let him dress."

Soon however townspeople took on a new attitude toward this strange training technique and other schools gained respect for Wauconda High.

A notebook became the basketball players' bible during season. In this was expressed the ideas and attitudes boys were encouraged to consider and live by.

"Our team is almost like a club," says Reed, "each boy realizing you must be special to belong. You must be willing to sacrifice, have high ideals, become an example to others, and a gentleman to all."

"Build good boys and you'll produce a fine team. Not always winners perhaps, but future good citizens. One of my team's leading scorers was approached by several colleges for scholarships, one of which was Stanford. He asked me for a recommendation which, although I was honest, did not always make this boy look good. The boy saw how I filled out the forms. He lost that scholarship, but his attitude improved. Shortly after that he received another opportunity to attend the Air Force Academy. Even though that student realized what the outcome might be, he again approached me for a recommendation. He is attending the Academy."

Dr. Thomas E. Shaffer, a member of the American Medical Association's Committee on the Medical Aspects of Sports, summarized an AMA conference concerned with head protection in contact sports. The Committee feels that, at the present time, a proper fitting plastic football helmet provides the best protection. Dr. Shaffer repeatedly emphasized the importance and absolute necessity of having any helmet fit properly. A properly fitting helmet will, when it is new, be uncomfortable to the wearer. It must, like certain other items, be broken in. It was suggested that this could perhaps be done by giving the helmet to the player sometime before practice began in the fall and have him break it in by wearing it for short periods of time. The same procedure should be followed in breaking in football shoes. It is also necessary, if injuries are to be reduced, that players get themselves in condition before squad practices are called in the fall. There is an extreme hazard in the use of cheap helmets and the investigation of the Committee on the Medical Aspects of Sports has revealed that there is a great difference in the amount of protection provided between a helmet of good quality and the generally cheaper priced head pieces. Dr. Shaffer strongly condemned the practices of spearing and goring, contending that if these techniques are used there definitely will be injuries. In his opinion, the matter of head protection was really not involved in the matter of goring and spearing because this was a matter of coaching ethics. The face guard provides valuable protection to both the face and the teeth. Research has determined that close-fitting face protectors are the most desirable and that a chin strap which is firmly attached is preferable to one which is loose.

Mr. Jack Havey brought the Committee greetings from the Athletic Goods Manufacturers' Association and expressed his appreciation for the privilege of representing the manufacturers at the rules sessions. Mr. Havey, who has been in the employ of a manufacturer of athletic goods for well over a quarter of a century, assured the Committee that the manufacturers were doing all in their power to provide the best possible equipment at the most reasonable cost. All reputable manufacturers acknowledge a responsibility in making a contribution for the best interests of scholastic football. Toward this end, each of them have a research division which devotes all of its efforts to developing a better product. Some of the new products were shown and special features of each were called to the attention of the Committee. The area of the head and neck is of the greatest interest at the present time. New helmets were displayed in which an outside shock panel of resilient material covered the top and back. The panel was described as protective and it was pointed out that it was necessary that it be durable, paintable and would not engage when struck a glancing blow. If the panel would stick or "engage," it could twist the neck of the helmet wearer. A helmet extension pad, which is adaptable to both new and older model helmets, protects the back of the neck from "rabbit punch" blows and is made of soft material so as not to contribute to the hyperextension of the cervical area. The features of chin straps, helmet size reducers, upper arm pads, shoulder injury pads and neck rolls were called to the attention of the group. The representative from the Athletic Goods Manufacturers' Association emphasized that substantial "tried and true" protective gear was a better investment than cheap, unsound equipment. In order to provide maximum protection, a piece of equipment must properly fit the wearer. It is necessary that gear be properly stored and adequately renovated periodically in order to get the maximum service from it. It was suggested that small uniform damage be repaired promptly, that face protectors should be attached firmly, that a loose chin strap is, in reality, no chinstrap, that worn cleats should be replaced promptly and that low cost cleaning or conditioning offers should be thoroughly investigated before being accepted.

Mr. Perry Sandell, representing the American Dental Association, reported that a survey which his organization was just then completing seemed to support the findings of earlier surveys in that the use of tooth and mouth protectors dramatically reduce the incidence of dental injuries to football players. He congratulated the Rules Committee on its decision to modify the original recommendation on mouth protectors so that stock type protectors may be used. The action of the Committee was justified on the basis of experience and it is evident that stock type protectors have given protection against dental injury. Mr. Sandell acknowledged that there were a number of problems during the first year of mandatory application of the rule. It is not at all unusual in any new program to be confronted with problems and unanticipated situations but, fortunately, these problems have been definitely identified and manufacturers and dentists will continue to use their resources to make improvements in mouth protectors which will be used during the following years. The House of Delegates of the American Dental Association officially voted its support of the mouth protector program and has encouraged its state and local dental societies to cooperate to the fullest in implementing the program. The primary concern of the American Dental Association, in the mouth protector program, is identical to that of the National Alliance Football Rules Committee. It is to make it possible for football players to have the most effective protection possible against injuries to the teeth and mouth. To this objective, Mr. Sandell said, the Dental Association pledges the Committee its support.

Standing Sub-Committee Chairmen submitted valuable reports which included information and material upon which the Rules Committee could base action. These reports were made by J. C. Harper, Chairman, Game Administration Sub-Committee; Lyle Quinn, Chairman, Equipment Sub-Committee; S. D. Jackson, Chairman, Research Sub-Committee; and Edward Ryan, Chairman, Statistical Sub-Committee. David C. Arnold, Chairman of the Injury Data Sub-Committee, presented the National Federation's official Report of Fatalities resulting from 1962 interscholastic competition. A summary of these reports will be included in the complete minutes. The Safety Sub-Committee had no formal report.

Several carry-over problems and new studies were referred to the standing committees for further study and recommendation.

CHECK-UP ON 1962 CODE: Approximately 20,000 National Alliance Football Questionnaires were distributed by the National Federation, the National Junior College Athletic Association and the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. Nearly 7,000 were returned and tabulated. The proportionate vote of one group differed very little from the corresponding vote in each of the other groups. This prevailed for the check-up on last season's rules as well as for the possible revisions for the 1963 season.

Coach Reed feels that all the rules and advocating of building good attitude, appreciation, and respect is fruitless if the coach does not set the example first. "You must meet the team with a positive approach. I know this business of setting a good example is a workable situation. The team knows they are expected to keep the rules because I do myself. It takes time to gain their trust, but believe me, it's every bit worth the while. It's a good feeling to see just how wonderful youngsters can become, and that you may have helped lead them toward this."

MINUTES OF BOARD MEETING

the Commissioner be authorized to set the dates and determine the sites of the other spring events. The motion was carried unanimously.

The Commissioner read a letter from Mr. Charles Quire, President of the Louisville Coaches Association, requesting for his organization Board sanction of an All-Star football game to be played in Louisville next August. The Board declined to change its policy adopted some two years ago, to the effect that it would give its sanction only to the football and basketball games sponsored each August by the Kentucky High School Coaches Association.

The Commissioner stated that ties existed in the district basketball tournament balloting in Districts 5, 35, and 40. Foster J. Sanders moved, seconded by Don R. Rawlings, that the tournaments in District 5, 35, and 40 be awarded respectively to the Caldwell County High School, the Newport High School, and the Bourbon County High School. The motion was carried unanimously.

Sherman Gish moved, seconded by Ralph C. Dorsey, that all bills of the Association for the period beginning December 22, 1962, and ending January 25, 1963, be approved. The motion was carried unanimously.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.
